4101 Thornoaks Drive, Ann Arbor

This remodel was an incredible opportunity to rethink an already strong Mid-Century Modern design in a protected, historic home. We opened up the kitchen and added an east-facing sitting room that extends the kitchen and dining space, while simultaneously creating a buffer between the main public area of the house and the large backyard.

Floor to ceiling glass takes advantage of the morning light and rolling landscape to create a more unified flow between the kitchen, living, dining, and outdoor entertaining spaces. The reworked kitchen is now better suited for hosting, while fitting seamlessly into the home's original composition.
